Japan's answer to The Blue Man Group - rebooted for 2014!

SIRO-A RETURNS TO LONDON WITH TECHNO FUN FOR ALL THE FAMILY

Multi-award-winning techno phenomenon, SIRO-A bring their groundbreaking theatrical experience back to London for an electrifying third season, after stunning the world with their revolutionary mix of visual effects, mime, dance, comedy, music, magic, puppetry and audience participation.

Following sold-out German and American tours and critically-acclaimed, international shows, the global sensation return to wow the capital in a three-month season at Leicester Square Theatre running until 11 January, with a rebooted extravaganza, which also features exciting seasonal surprises over Christmas.

You are invited to review the new 2014 SIRO-A show on Tuesday April 11 at 7.00pm

SIRO-A have been billed as "Japan's answer to the Blue Man Group," although their name means "impossible to define," because SIRO-A's revolutionary, live extravaganza is truly unique family entertainment, delighting the senses and transcending language and age. Alongside an exhilarating techno soundtrack, the six performers interact with technology in remarkable new ways, fusing spectacular 3D video projection, light animation and stunning laser effects with extraordinary choreography, humour, magic and ingenious reinvention of Japan's ancient art of shadow puppetry. The group was formed in 2002 by six classmates from Sendai, Japan, each gifted with his own set of extraordinary, specialised skills. They shared the common goal of combining these talents to create the next generation of truly universal, non-verbal entertainment, which shatters all barriers of language, age, class and culture to thrill audiences across the globe. Reality and animation blend seamlessly in the ever-changing, futuristic landscape that the exquisitely-timed performers explode across, enchanting fans of all ages and nationalities, earning them Mervyn Stutter's prestigious Spirit of the Fringe award at 2011's Edinburgh Fringe, when they first captivated the UK.

SIRO-A even reinvent audience interaction with wit and technology, ensuring theatre-goers become an exciting part of each show, making it truly unique to that crowd, without singling out individuals or making anybody uncomfortable.

The hypnotic, multimedia performance oscillates between heart-stopping beauty and playful humour, with hilarious references to London and popular culture, carefully woven into their trademark "virtual hyper-reality."

It's an intoxicating world which, like its stars, will leave you speechless.
